GOOD ROADS DO PAY!

A man remarked recently that he wished a good road had never been connected near Elba. It was his contention that business had suffered since the advent of good roads. Strange as it may sound to anyone in this day and time, the remark had a vestige of truth in it. Good roads will draw trade away from a town. On the other hand they will also draw trade TO a town.

The two statements above are not contradictions of each other. Good roads will draw trade to a town providing some effort is made to attract that trade. Unless that effort is made, the converse holds good, and it is better for merchants so inclined to knock good roads and hinder every progressive effort, so that what trade they already have may stay within the boundaries established back in the days when an ox-cart was the mode of transportation.

TWO ADDED COLLEGE YEARS

The Elba Daily Citizen recently printed a story coming from Col. Charles S. McDowell, Jr., in which a two-year college course is proposed for the various high schools of Alabama. Editor Simmons says: "The Daily Citizen welcomes this suggestion from Col. McDowell. It is to be hoped that his suggestion will command the serious consideration of everyone in the state who is interested in giving EVERY boy and girl who finishes high school and wants a college course, a better opportunity of availing themselves of this training."

It is true that many boys and girls are deprived of a college education because of the excessive cost, but the plan suggested above is yet a trifle Utopian, and would of necessity invoke criticism from many sources, the taxpayers, for instance, when called upon to add another burden to the already formidable pack.

The best plan at present, as we see it, is to build up the high schools, bring them up to a higher standard throughout the state, especially in the smaller towns, and consolidated districts, places that are sadly lacking in equipment and other facilities.

When the high schools have reached more nearly a state of perfection, it will then be time to add another year or two, with college subjects.

CARNES PAYS PENALTY

And what a penalty! C. S. Carnes, erstwhile treasurer of the Southern Baptists, was sentenced to from 5 to 7 years in the penitentiary at McAlester, Okla., last week. The defaulting holder of the purse-strings for the Baptists only made away with something over $200,000, a small part of which was recovered, and he receives as light a penalty as a man who is convicted for tapping the till of a country store. Verily, justice assumes strange forms. In this instance practically unrecognizable, to the masses anyway.

COMMUNITY PAGE

We wish to call the attention of our readers to page three of this issue. On that page you will find the names of merchants and firms in Elba who are striving to make this place in the "Community Spirit" really does abide.

CONFIDENCE IN SOUTHERN PROGRESS

For practical confidence in Southern stability and Southern progress shining illustrations may be found in New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, Boston, Detroit, Cincinnati, Philadelphia—indeed, in any large Northern or Eastern city in being with business in the South. They are laying their plans and making their investments in a spirit of matter-of-fact faith in this section of the country.

The South has the goodwill of the business leaders in other sections of the country, but it is not a mere sentimental wishing-well, with a bland disregard of conditions, basic and current; rather it is an informed friendship. There is in a sense the detachment that comes from distance, a detachment which often improves clarity of vision and enables the judgment to function the more accurately. Looking over the South as a whole, and decades as a whole, these business men can view in a dispassionate way the strength of the Southern industrial and commercial situation, as well as those momentary weaknesses which develop from time to time. They understand a full period, or even a period of depression, which may exist for the year in some one section due to local and transitory conditions. They give the proper valuation, too, to boom conditions that may exist in another section of the Southern territory. Neither weighs overly much with them. The record of the decade, and the fundamental facts which form the basis for our business structure—these are the things that have their acute consideration.

It is both comforting and inspiring to encounter this matter-of-fact faith in the South in financial and industrial centers of the North and East. The continued development, and the prosperity of the South are to our informed friends in that section, an accepted thing. The Southern, visiting in the North and East, is soon impressed with this attitude, and returns home with more sold on his section of the country than here. Here at home we may be swayed by sentiment, in our enthusiasm our judgment itself may suffer, but when the Northern chemist, or engineer, or banker, or manufacturer, takes up the South for Survey and analysis, he is not hampered at all by considerations of that kind, and his verdict is based solely on the facts as he finds them—Industrial Index.

BALANCED RATIONS OF PLANT FOOD BEST FOR FARM CROPS

A balanced ration is best for both human beings and livestock. This fact has been proved by science. Food authorities tell us to use a mixed diet, balancing the different kinds of food substances, making sure to obtain sufficient mineral material and vitamins. Producers of livestock have found that proper feeds must be used in order that their stock may make the most economical gains. The progressive farmer determines the necessity of a balanced ration for their crops as well as for their livestock. A means of obtaining more profitable milk production.

Balanced Rations for Crops
Balanced rations for crops are just as necessary for best growth. It is not difficult to observe when plants in a field are starting to die, and each year many fields are seen where plants are dying for lack of plant food. In other fields it is apparent that the crop is healthy and plenty of some plant foods but lacks others, and an unbalanced ration. A balanced ration would be a fertilizer containing the right proportions of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, according to the Soil Improvement Committee, The National Fertilizer Association.

The progressive farmer knows that can eat large amounts of food, but he looks on them as a sort of

PROFITS FROM COTTON DEPEND ON LOW COST

Profit from cotton for 1928 depends on the difference between the cost of producing and marketing the crop and the price that can be obtained for it. The grower with a low cost of production per pound of cotton will make more profit per bale, providing the quality of his product is good.

Studies of cost of producing cotton in the United States have been made by the United States Department of Agriculture. These studies have indicated that under average conditions, where yields of one-third of a bale per acre were obtained, it cost approximately 16 cents to produce and market a pound of lint. On farms where yields of a bale or more were secured, the cost of lint was only 8 cents per pound.

These results clearly show that low yield per acre means high cost per pound. High yield per acre offers opportunity for greater profit by increasing the spread between the cost of production and the selling price, according to the Soil Improvement Committee, The National Fertilizer Association.

FARMERS NEED CHEAPER HOME GROWN FEEDS

Helps Lower Cost of Growing Cotton Crops and Increases Grower's Profit.

Cheap home-grown feed helps to lower the cost of growing cotton and to increase the cotton grower's profit. The cost of feed is one of the largest items in the cost of production, but many farmers have plenty of corn or other crops that they can use for feed.

Although the Southern farmer is planting a large acreage of corn, he must buy feed, because his average crop of corn is only 17 bushels per acre. Because of this low yield the cost of corn per bushel is high.

This low yield can be increased at a profit. The cost studies made by the United States Department of Agriculture show that on farms where higher yields were obtained, corn was produced at a lower cost per bushel. For although it cost more per acre to produce the larger yields, there were more bushels to share the cost, and the cost of lint was only 8 cents per pound.

A good male should have 75 bushels of corn during the year. If the yield is 13 bushels per acre, about 8 acres of corn at a cost of $100 would be required to feed a male. If 41 bushels per acre are grown, two acres would supply the corn at a cost of $49.00.

As considerable land is available for corn, it might seem that the farmer should increase his acreage in corn in order to grow sufficient feed.

A better way is to fertilize more liberally the acre now under cultivation and thereby get not only more corn but cheaper corn, because it costs much more to cultivate the additional acre in corn than to buy fertilizer sufficient to produce the necessary feed on the acres now in corn.

Under usual conditions the application of a complete fertilizer at the rate of 100 pounds per acre will give the best results when the corn is planted in May. This may be followed by an application of nitrogen in readily available form. On this land two applications of available nitrogen are sometimes made, the first being applied when the corn is 4 inches high and the second when the corn is budding to tassels.

From 200 to 400 pounds per acre of a complete fertilizer, such as 10-4-4, applied at planting time, followed by a side dressing of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime, or of three-fourths this amount of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime, will produce corn at a lower cost per bushel. Under average conditions, the application of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent in nitrate of lime or sulphate of ammonia should give a yield of 40 to 50 bushels of corn, according to the Soil Improvement Committee, The National Fertilizer Association.

Sometimes similar results have been obtained by experiment stations in other states. Commenting on the results of experiments at the Mississippi station to determine the proper rate of fertilization for cotton, these in charge of this work state that the results "indicate high yields are practicable and justify the conclusion that the danger lies not in using too little rather than too much fertilizer."

The use of 400 to 500 pounds of a high-analysis complete fertilizer per acre on cotton is conservative.

MRS. C. W. RUDD
Mrs. C. W. Rudd, who has been in declining health for the past year, and was stricken helpless and speechless on Jan. 7th, lingered along till Jan. 18th, when she reached the end of her sufferings here, having lived 11 days without water or nourishment.

She was a sister of the late P. J. Ham, Sr., and is the last one of the old heads of this family in Coffee County. She was an affectionate wife, a loving mother, and a lovable character. Laid and will long be remembered by her acquaintances, after her days of service have come to an end. The respect she had won by her kindness was reflected when friends old and young, far and near, came and stood respectfully by to help her in her last moments.

DAIRY PLAY IS SOMETHING NEW

The Dairy Play, "Joe Guess Runs a Boarding House," is a new way of putting over a message on better dairying. In the short time it has been going, it has been shown to be one of the most far-reaching programs in the United States.

The play has been given in 38 states and has been seen by more than 250,000 people.

Program of Dairy Play
"Joe Guess Runs a Boarding House"
Cast of Characters:
Dairymen who guess at what he thinks
The Man who starts Joe to thinking
Boss Profit
A Cow that knows her cream checks
MORRIS, DECEASED
A Cow that holds out on her board
Boss Flapper
The "Joe Guess" Boarding House
Scene 1—Joe Guess is reading a book on dairying.
Scene 2—Joe Guess is reading a book on dairying.
Scene 3—A conference at the boarding house—the boarders revolt.
Scene 4—After 50 years old, a conference is held to see how a new plan has worked.

The play is scheduled for Feb. 18 at 8 p. m. It will be held at the High School Auditorium. There will be no charge for admission to this play. It is free to any interested in dairying. Tickets can be secured at the office of Miss Hughes at the Court house or at E. F. Blocker's store. The play will be given rain or shine.

If all home-canned food is boiled 15 minutes before eaten, any possible danger of poisoning with botulism toxin will be removed, as toxin is destroyed by boiling.

MRS. C. W. RUDD
Mrs. C. W. Rudd, who has been in declining health for the past year, and was stricken helpless and speechless on Jan. 7th, lingered along till Jan. 18th, when she reached the end of her sufferings here, having lived 11 days without water or nourishment.

She was a sister of the late P. J. Ham, Sr., and is the last one of the old heads of this family in Coffee County. She was an affectionate wife, a loving mother, and a lovable character. Laid and will long be remembered by her acquaintances, after her days of service have come to an end. The respect she had won by her kindness was reflected when friends old and young, far and near, came and stood respectfully by to help her in her last moments.

INDIAN GIRL ENDS EXILE FOR WEARING MODERN SUIT

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12.—Rosalee Bille, 16-year-old Seminole belle, has made for her "desire dress" after the manner of the modern fashion. She is now in the Indian camp here last night after a six months' exile into the fastness of the Everglades, imposed by the tribal trial. Rosalee's exile was brought about by her adoption of a modern girl's one-piece bathing suit. In all the while she was adopted when she was wearing the Indian dress at the Spring corn festival last June, after she had been found guilty by the medicine men of the tribe of being a "white girl." She is now in the Indian camp here last night after a six months' exile into the fastness of the Everglades, imposed by the tribal trial.

NEGRO ETTILES DEBT AT LAST RAIPORD, Fla., Jan. 29.—An old negro, who refused a pardon after serving 20 years of a life sentence for murder, paid his debt to society in full today.

Joe Peacock, 67, died in the prison hospital, on the grounds where he chose to stay because as he told the governor who wished to set him free, "I've nowhere else to go."

In 1893 Peacock went up for the murder of another negro at DeFuniak Springs. He became a prisoner and in 1918 Governor Catts proffered him a pardon. "I've been here so long now, I'd rather stay, if I can," he said.

Peacock was said to have stated, "So, the negro who was given the run of the grounds and who was described as a typical 'antebellum' negro. He will be buried in the prison cemetery."

DEMONSTRATION AT CHESTNUT GROVE

The demonstration of the last meeting of the Chestnut Grove club was cooking dinner. We met February 7, 1929, at the home of Mrs. J. D. Johnson. Miss Hughes carried out the demonstration by cooking a fine dinner on a table. Many guests were present and the members volunteered their services of laying and decorating the table. I believe each one enjoyed a delightful dinner, especially while the dinner was being served. After that we did not shiver from the most the most delicious of all dishes—icing.

CHILD MANAGEMENT

Interest and love alone on the part of the mother are not enough to insure success in handling the inevitable problems met with in the management of children. The very best of the mother for her child may be the "stumbling block" that prevents her from successfully fulfilling the obligations of her parenthood. This issue is invariably associated with excessive worry, anxiety, and at times, fatigue, which prevent the most intelligent approach to many problems of childhood.

MOTHER LOVE

Over-coddling on the part of the mother is a common fault in an entirely new setting. Children may become self-centered and develop humbly imaginary egotism by the time they are five years of age.
